Nuan Gao

Assistant Professor of History

B.A., M.A., Peking University; M.A., PH.D., University of California, Irvine

Last year Nuan was a Visiting Assistant Professor at Richard Stockton College of New Jersey specializing in modern Chinese history. Before that she was an instructor at the University of California, Irvine. Her research interests are in the cultural, intellectual, gender and diplomatic history of China. Her future research interests include doing case studies on a couple of distinguished “woman male roles” of Peking Opera in the 20th century as well as studying Sino-foreign relations from 1900 to 1949.

Diane L. Magary

Assistant Professor, Business Scholars Program

B.A., Hanover College; M.B.A., Duke University

Diane has been employed with Ethicon Endo-Surgery, a Johnson & Johnson Company, since 2000, most recently as Director, Marketing Development. Prior to that she was Director of Marketing and Member of Senior Management Team at Cardima, Inc. and at St. Jude Medical, Inc., Cardiac Rhythm Management Division as Manager of Market Information and Planning. She has a wide range of experience in international marketing, strategic planning, education, research and development, sales, information systems, and management.

Mridula Mascarenhas

Instructor of Communication

B.A., St. Xavier's College (India); M.A., Mumbai University (India); M.A., University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee

Mridula has been a graduate teaching assistant at University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee several times during her studies there. She has been a full-time instructor at Saint Cloud State University and Ithaca College. Her research focuses on public and political discourse and social movements using primarily a rhetorical perspective. She examines the ways in which individuals and groups enact identities, practice citizenship and engage in community building or conflict.

Glené Mynhardt

Assistant Professor of Biology

B.S., University of Texas-Austin; M.A., Texas A&M University; Ph.D., The Ohio State University

Glené comes to Hanover from Iowa State University where she was an HHMI Postdoctoral Teaching Fellow. She held various graduate teaching positions at Ohio State 2006-2012. Outside the classroom at Ohio State she curated plants in the Herbarium and updated one of the world's largest bird song databases in the Borror Lab of Bioacoustics. Her primary interest is in beetle systematics, specifically the evolution of myrmecophilous beetles. Other interests include phylogenetics, taxonomy, morphology, and co-evolution.
